. A AQUATIC.

The British University Carsmen-Pro gramme of Saturday's Contest On the Thumes-Names and Weights of the the aquatic circles of England at present are in sever of excitement regarding the inter-univer-nty boat race—the annual contest between the picked crews of Cambridge and Oxford Universi-ties—which takes place over the usual course on the Thames on Saturday afternoon of this week. The sporting journals of London for some time past have narrowly watched and "worked up" for their have narrowly watched and "worked up" for their readers every item of interest concerning the gen-tlemen who have been selected by the respective educational institutions to do them honor on the eventful day. Both crews reached their quarters, mear Putney, week before last—the Cantabs on the loth inst., stopping at the Star and Garter, and the exemines the 13th inst., making their head-quarters the Fox and Hounds. Since that exarters the Fox and Hounds. Since that time they have had daily practice, varying their "oasies" with occasional pulls over the entire course, which is from Putney to Mortake, a distance of four miles and three furlougs; and at last advices, though no detailed griticism could be indulged in regarding their rowing, impressions have been formed by competent ludges, which have been given to the London public in the following shape:—

Taken man for man Cambridge are unquestionably much the stronger crew, and when sented in their nontheir superior physique shows to very marked advantage. At the same time their rewing is not so clean and finished, at any rate not so taking to the eye, as that of their sponents, their most noticeable tault being a tendency to hang at the beginning of the stroke and a want of uniformity about the feather, in addition to which they at present searcely seem to be thoroughly at home on their sliding seats. On the other thand, all reach well out, and, beyond all question, make their boat travel at a great bace. The excitor fowing is marked by greater cleanness and regularity, and the men throughout make better use of their shiders "and get a good grip of the water at the commencement of the stroke, but seem to lack the power to row it through. This last defect was particularly noticeable in their gratice of yesterday (March 14), the result strokes.

Winship and James Lally-Winship the Winner.

Gn Monday, 10th inst., a straightaway sculler's race was rowed upon the River Tyne, at Newcastle, between two well-known Tyne oarsmen, named mas Winship and James Lally, for £100 a side. The course was from two boats, moored twenty yards apart, at the High Level Bridge, up to the Suspension Bridge at Scotswood, a distance of nearly four miles. Great interest has been taken Buspension Bridge at Scotswood, a distance of nearly four miles. Great interest has been taken in this match, not only because of the large amount of the stake, but also because of the prominent position the two men hold among Tyneside sculiers. Winship has rowed in several matches and at several regattas, but he more prominently came before the public as the stroke oar of the champion four-pared crew which rewed in the American races. His opponent, Lally, has so far confined himself, as an oarsman, to the Tyne, and has won for himself a high name among rising oarsmen, and not a few look forward to his winning, at some net distant time, a very high position as an oarsman. The final deposit of £40 a side was made on Ffddy night, when Mr. William Oldham, of Newcastie, was mutually accepted as referee. The toss for position was won by Winship, who chose the north side. Lally got the best of the start by about three feet: in the first six strokes, however, Winship gained on him, and for a short distance both men rowed side by side. At 400 yards from the start Winship crept up, and at 600 yards led by about a boat's length. In his next few strokes Laily appeared to be somewhat exhausted. Winship rowed on in fine style, and at Redheugh Bridge, a distance of half a mile, he led by three lengths. The race was now virtually over, as Lally never gained on his opponent, and Winship shot through Sectawood Suspension Bridge an easy winner by eight lengths. Betting at the start was 7 to 4 on Winship, and after the toss 9 to 4. A great amount of money changed hands. There was a very large attendance, between fifty and sixty thousand persons being present.

EDWARDS IN ENGLAND.

Victories of the American Light-Weight Champion in Boxing and Running— He Defeats Fawcett, of Birmingham, in a Glove Contest and in a Foot Race of since Billy Edwards, the American light-weight champion, left New York for England, his many pugilistic friends here, who remember him kindly for his straightforward conduct on all occasions, have heard but little regarding his movements and mtentions while remaining in the land of his birth.

• nace or twice reports have reached them that he tation, but these affairs always fell through, though the reasons were unknown. At last Billy has been doing something for himself—engaging in a glove the reasons were unknown. At last Billy has been doing something for himself—engaging in a glove contest and ruuning a feot race with Fawcett, of Birmingham, and in both these events he proved the winner, which all that know him will be glad to learn. The particulars of these sporting affairs are tous given in late English papers:—

On Tuesday evening, March 11, a glove contest for a purse of sovereigns was brought off at Manchester, between Billy Edwards (the American light-weight champion) and Fawcett, of Birmingham. The affair was get up at a short notice, consequently neither man was in anything like condition, Edwards scaling close on 10 st., Fawcett about 10 st. 10 ibs. The floor of the room in which the affair came off was carpeted and a sixteen-foot ring was pitched. The turn up was kept strictly private and about one hundred and forty persons paid the sum of £1 is. demanded for admission. As the representatives of the press were, to a man, excluded, it is impossible to enter into details of the encounter, which, however, preseuted no features specially noteworthy. Edwards was seconded by a weil known ex-champion, Fawcet by one of the London division and a once prominent member of the Birmingham ring, while the post of referee was filled by a gentleman well known in the Manchester sporting circles. At ten minutes to eight o'clock the men put up their hands and began the fight, betting being at evens. Throughout the affair the balance of skill was decidedly in favor of Edwards, who used both hands very effectively, and, had the gloves been removed, he would have made short work with his opponent, who appeared to rely upon his superiority in physical power, as, in almost every round, he bored Edwards to the ropes, where he put on the hug, time after time; indeed on one occasion the ropes had to be out to release the American. After the men had been fighting an hour, Edwards fell weak, and odds of 2 to 1 were offered on Fawcett. After this, however, Edwards revived, and in the thirty-eighth round he threw

WESTCHESTER ELECTION RETURNS.

The results of the annual town elections which came off on Tuesday in Westchester county evince a slight preference for democratic doctrine. Last year the Board of Supervisors was about equally composed of republicans and democrats, while at the next organization of that body, as will be seen by the returns below, the last-named party will have a majority of five in the Board. The following are the names of the Supervisors elected and the several towns which they represent:
